REVISITING THE COUNTRYSIDE

The teams and tractors were busy. Scarcely a farm but showed a rectangle of freshly turned earth. Hours of labor were being reckoned in terms of work that needed doing, not in terms of 40-hour weeks.

A tourist with an eye for trends must be impressed these days, statistics to the contrary notwithstanding, by the movement back to the land. It is especially evident along all roads adjacent to population centers. Due perhaps to the failure of the press to catalogue things that take place slowly, the amount of building in the country has been given no name, endowed with no startling significance. But it is there, in plain sight. For various reasons, mostly economic, families have been doing on their own hook what someone always is talking about doing behind a brass band, i. e., they have returned to the land.

The contrast between the solid buildings of the country generation that built half a century ago and the new generation's smaller, flimsier structures probably has a social story to tell. But at the outset of the telling, perhaps it should be remembered that before the big barns and the hotel-size farmhouses there were log cabins, and before the log cabins were brush shelters.

The soil lies the same as it always did, a bit worked out where it was used too hard, sometimes eroded, sometimes drifting back to brush. But it has possibilities never plumbed in a country so vast its deep thinkers worry lest farmers, in an excess of zeal, provide so much to eat that the appetite of the well fed won't be able to hold the pace. And of course it must be considered, too, that many who have gone back to the land are not looking for an opportunity to add their mite to the agricultural surplus. Their eyes are still on the main cash chance, which once more is a job in the factory, the mill, or at the nearest national defense project.

Here and there, rising on a pole above a building is a gadget that might be a wind vane, but is a generator for electricity to make winter evenings a little easier and provide energy for the electric pump that puts life and purpose into the inside plumbing. The real thing, of course, is the power line that marches along the roads and up the lanes, always at considerable expense but always for the worthiest of purposes. School books and daily papers are not pored over in the yellow radiance of the stuff that made Rockefeller rich, but in the certified beams of cheap electricity that eventually will be cheaper. The light of knowledge may still have trouble penetrating the brain, but it's a lot easier on the eyes these days. Perhaps electricity's greatest service to the farm, however, has been to shed light on the eternal fencing problem, solved scientifically now by stringing wire on insulators hammered into posts and turning some low voltage into the circuit. The livestock dreads the kilowatt, 'tis said, as the burnt child dreads the fire.

EXCEPT for the gadgetry of electricity, radio aerials, and the dependable cars that have put most farms within three quarters of an hour of the Center of Things, the farm looks about the same as another growing season gets under way—the same, that is, as it did when almost everybody either lived on one, or was only one step removed. The experts say there is likely to be a shortage of farm boys due to the draft, but that is not something to be seen from the highway. Nor can a casual tourist detect any of the other things that experts on agriculture ponder endlessly.

What is more likely to catch the eye is a vividly painted school bus delivering likely looking children at the end of a hard day of academic preparation for this life of toil. Or perhaps the eye is entranced by a particularly lovely bit of landscaping performed by the Master Landscaper and left that way, without even a Keep Off The Grass sign to show that it is something special. The eye's owner may think for a moment that for a chance to see that triumph a thousand times a day he would do whatever it is farm folk are supposed to object to most—even up to the extreme of loading cargo on one of the stern wheelers that ply steadily between the barnyard and the fields, putting back what hath been taken away.

THERE is going to be hunger approaching famine in Europe this year. It is preposterous. Everything about Europe lately is preposterous. There is enough land in America, if properly used, to feed the world, though that wouldn't be necessary. All that would be necessary would be to let Europe know that America stood ready to take away the murderous edge from the appetites of human animals that kill to eat.

It's just one of the vague notions that rattle in the heads of over-impressionable tourists who knock off on an April afternoon to buy a dollar's worth of anti-knock, then go buzzing over the countryside to remind themselves that ultimate reality isn't the blatherings of paranoiacs, or the death rattle of civilization in Europe, but the greenery that spreads over the earth in springtime. This greenery still will be doing business at the same old stand countless aeons after homo sapiens has gone the way of the musk ox. The ox once roamed the world but now is found as a curiosity only in desolate areas up toward the north pole.

THE STARS SAY:

For Wednesday, April 16

A DAY to be up and doing with verve, zest and initiative in whatever direction the yearnings and aspirations are most insistently centered. This is likely to be on the joys of a sentimental or emotional complexion rather than the solid or workaday, although in practical lines there may be signs of promotion, preterit, honors or other tokens from the hands of superiors or those in high places. Cultural and artistic ambitions may be gratified. In all intimate affairs be alert to peculiar angles of intrigue or duplicity.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is should be on the eve of a year of opportunity for succeeding in a progressive and productive chain of events, involving the private as well as public life. There are indications of favors, honors and promotion from those in prestige and power and also the artistic, intellectual and emotional urges may find most felicitous expression. It is a time for pushing for high goals and cherished aspirations, but keep clear of possible entanglements of a peculiar or intriguing nature.

A child born on this day should have many artistic, literary or musical talents as well as practical creative urges. It will have an engaging, amiable and lovable disposition and should attain position and happiness in its career.

WARNS OF ACCIDENTS

COLUMBUS, O., April 15.—Asserting that "the worst is yet to come" in the field of occupational accidents, Thomas P. Kearns, chief of the state division of safety and hygiene, today urged leaders of labor and industry to further the national defense program by eliminating hazard to the workers.

"Every sign of the times indicates that the safety forces of the nation have some rough sledding ahead of them," Kearns asserted in an address prepared for the opening of the three-day All Ohio Safety Congress.

"Accident levels are rising steadily and it would be folly to contend that the worst is not yet to come. We have not nearly reached the maximum in our efforts for defense production and we may just as well reconcile our minds to the thought that the sum total of accidental injuries and deaths in Ohio will probably be heavier in 1941 than it was in the preceding year."

Effectiveness of safety practices, Kearns said, was disclosed strikingly in a comparison of accident experience in 1929 and 1939.

"In 1939," he said, "with an employment figure only nine-tenths of one per cent less, major injuries were decreased 53.1 per cent and minor injuries 24.8 per cent" from 1929.

LITTLE CHATS ON PUBLIC NOTICES

By J. E. Pollard, Journalism Professor, Ohio State University

A Tale of a Pig

A strange and complicated story about a stray pig was related by the noted historian, John Fiske, in his "Beginnings of New England". This pig, it seems, was brought in 1643 to a certain Captain Keyne, of Boston, a rich man deemed to be hard and overbearing towards the poor. The captain "gave due public notice through the town crier" but no one appeared then to claim it.

Later, after the Captain had killed one of his own pigs which he had kept in the same sty with the stray, "a poor woman named Sherman" came to see whether the stray was one she had lost. Since she did not recognize it she claimed that the captain had slaughtered her pig instead of his own. She brought the case before the elders of the church who ruled against her. Next she accused Keyne of theft but a jury cleared him. He then sued her for defamation and got, what, for the time was a heavy judgment against her. Oddly, the issue became political and, to make a long story short, this in turn led to the permanent separation of the colonial legislature into two houses.

Several "morals" might be drawn from this tale. One is that 300 years and more ago, our forebears had made the public notice an important part of their legal system. It was another 70 years before the first colonial newspaper, the Boston News-Letter, came to stay. But from the first, as they still are, public notices were an important part of the contents of the newspapers.

PHYSICIANS HAVE THEIR FADS, TOO

Patients Not Alone In Following Medical Trends

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

We all know that patients are liable to have fads. They go from one doctor to another and from one form of treatment to another, always seeking the sudden magic result, but we do not always realize that doctors are also faddy. Some people seem to think of them as austere and immovably learned.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

human beings who arrive at a conclusion after a long process of logic based upon science and are always right, but they can be just as faddy as the patients. Medical friends of mine, who believed, once upon a time, in having the appendix out for any ill, are now giving vitamins by the carload and before long I predict that they will be using small doses of selenium.

Whenever a patient gets cured by a method that is not approved of by the text books of medicine the doctors all say it was due to suggestion. But the cures they accomplish themselves are never due to suggestion—oh no, they are the real thing. A patient has his back rubbed by a back-rubber and gets cured and the doctor says the cure is due to suggestion, but if the doctor should wash out the patient's stomach and the patient gets cured there is no suggestion about that. Or if he gives him vitamin B1 and he gets well that is not due to suggestion—oh no, that is the real thing.

Real Cures Remain

What has happened to the fads of other days? What has happened to Couesism? "Every day in every way I am getting better and better." You used to say that into the mirror. Remember? Are you still doing it? If it was good there why isn't it good now? If it cured you then why won't it still cure you?

The real thing doesn't change. If you had malaria ten years ago you would get quinine for it and it would cure you. If you had malaria today you would still get quinine for it and it would still cure you. There is just as much quinine being taken for malaria now as there was ten years ago. Why isn't there just as much Couesism being practiced now as then?

Fads Come and Go

Of course it is pretty hard to answer a question like that, but there is no question that fads come and go. Unless there is an organization today you would still get quinine for it and it would still cure you. There is just as much quinine being taken for malaria now as there was ten years ago. Why isn't there just as much Couesism being practiced now as then?

It is of course a little cruel of me to remind those of you who were once ardent Couesists that they have forgotten all about it. As a matter of fact it was a form of therapy that is recognized by the medical profession and a very sensible one. It probably did a lot of good. It would do a lot of people good now if they could convince themselves that every day in every way they were getting better and better. There are many people who need just the amount of self-assurance that cure gave them.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

L. D. N.—"I would like to know if carbonated beverages, such as pop, whistle and phosphates, are injurious to the health. I drink three or four of these bottled drinks a day."

Answer—No harm if you're healthy and if they don't make you too fat. Carbonation is good for a drink especially in hot weather; it quenches thirst faster.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, 235 E. 45th st., New York. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene," and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Lodge Will Hold District Meeting

WASHINGTONVILLE, April 15.—A district meeting of the I. O. O. F. lodge will be held here on Monday evening, April 14, by Orion Lodge No. 390, I. O. O. F.

Following the business session entertainment will be enjoyed and lunch served. All members in the district are invited to this meeting.

Mrs. Curtis Grindle was hostess on Thursday evening to bridge club members, with two tables in play. Honors were won by Mrs. Paul West and Mrs. Helen B. Weikart, who was a guest. The hostess served lunch. Mrs. Glenn McNeel will be the next hostess at her home in Salem.

The P. T. A. will hold a card party in the High school building on Tuesday evening April 15. The public is invited.

Miss Vera Davis of Wittenberg college and Miss Dorothy Ann Reese and Robert Baker of Kent State university are spending the Easter vacation here with their parents.

Mrs. Janet Snedden and Mrs. Celestia Franklin have returned home from a month's visit to Florida.

Mr. and Mrs. James Atkinson were honored on Thursday evening by members of their family gathered in their home to celebrate their 35th wedding anniversary. They were presented a gift. Lunch was served.

PHILADELPHIA—Edward J. Knapp, South Philadelphia High School language teacher, found himself in peculiar circumstances as a result of the draft. The pedagogue became the student—being taught army tactics by a pupil he formerly taught Latin conjugation.

LOS ANGELES—If ever a wartime blackout darkens the highways of this country, motorists probably will be guided by reflectors. D. C. Rhodes, sign-pesting manager of the Automobile Club of Southern California, believes the plan effective.

The census reports 3,324 antique shops in the U. S. with yearly sales totaling $17,743,000.

"Ton Jon Is Great," Says Ravenna School Teacher

Was a Chronic Sufferer of Constipation, Bothered Indigestion and Excessive Gas Would Form In His Stomach Causing Agonizing Misery.

Many say TON JON 1-2-3 are the only medicines that have helped so much even though they had tried different things. One of the latest to give a public statement is Mr. Charles Thomas, a public school teacher living at 422 Jefferson St., Ravenna, Ohio. Mr. Thomas states: "I am so glad that I began taking TON JON No. 1 that I came back to tell you how much good it has done for me. I had been a victim of constipation for a long time and had to be changing from one medicine to another because they were out on me, but the way TON JON has relieved me seems to be different."

"Since TON JON relieved my constipation I no longer suffer from severe attacks of indigestion and gas doesn't form in my stomach causing distressful misery. I enjoy much better sleep at night. I think TON JON is a great medicine because it started giving me splendid results after I began taking it." What TON JON has done for this sufferer it will also do for you, so don't delay getting some now being sold by the TON JON Health Representatives at Broadway-Lease Drug Store, Salem, Ohio.

"Lover Come Back"

by BARRETT WILLOUGHBY

CHAPTER ONE

Four bells struck. The black and white ship split in two, and the upper main-top's Old Ramps Reymann, bell-bell to get me this time. Me only chance was to square away and high-tail it for the time of me secret hideouts among the Aleutian Islands.

All hands stand by to wear ship! I sing out. Not one of me crew stir a foot. I whirl on me mate—a black a-vised Ulsterman he was with a bloody orange streak where his spine should have been. Get your men movin', mister.

He hunches his bull shoulders and growls. The men have no mind to be blown to Davy Jones, Cap'n. And neither have I. Order 'em to lay-to and they'll obey fast enough.

"Lay-to!" I roar. "And let a U. S. gunboat board the Glory of the West—with five thousand fresh seal pelts in our hold? Lose trip and ship and face a Federal prison for takin' seals that's as much ours as any man's?"

Faith, they swarmed to their stations like monkeys up a tree. The Falcon misses us with a third shot. Look alive, ye white-livered scoundrels! Starboard braces—slack away! Hard-a-port, ye lubbers! Hard-a-lee!"

The Glory tosses her head to leeward, spins on her heel, and light as a butterfly skimming a rose, goes by in the wind.

On the waterfront below strangers listened, open-mouthed, to the strong-hued phrases permitted on what they took to be a radio program. But fishermen of the O'Moore herring fleet—anchored almost under the promontory on which Echo House stood—glanced up, grinning. They knew it was the boss up there in the big bay window of Captain "Dynamite" Danny O'Moore, hence-bound by a broken leg sustained during his last spree. He was dictating his memoirs to Sonda, his spirited, redheaded granddaughter, recently returned from Stanford University.

Newcomers declared it scandalous that lovely Sonda Karmanova, O'Moore, descendant of one of Sitka's illustrious founders, should have to listen to the old Irish sea-buzzard's language, much less take it down on a typewriter. But residents of pioneer ancestry held other views. O'Moore might not be a gentleman in the same way all the aristocratic Karmanovas had been gentlemen, they conceded, but as an adventurer and a successful businessman, he was worthy of admiration and respect.

Moreover, he had proved his loyalty to Sitka less than two years ago when he had retired from an executive desk in the Seattle office of a coastwise steamship company. With money enough to end his days in luxurious idleness in any pleasure spot of the world, he had chosen to return to the ancestral home of his Russian wife and found a new business—O'Moore Sealers, Ltd., which had already revolutionized herring fishing in Alaska. Last, and most important of all, he had, some fifty years ago, married Sonda's grandmother. The ceremony made him one of them; and as such he could do no wrong.

O'Moore's still told with relish how young Dynamite Danny O'Moore had wooed the panned, wasp-waisted heiress of Echo House. Twenty-five years old then, and the Karedevil master of the pelagic sealer Triton, he had been sailing in across the bay when his binoculars brought close the golden beauty of Tanya Karmanova. She, just returned home from a Southern convent school, was leaning from an open arch in the cupola that topped the wide roof of Echo House, her opera glasses trained on his incoming ship. He had tossed her an impatient kiss. When she promptly retired from sight giving no sign, he had promptly brought his vessel to anchor below her windows. And there he had stayed until, with the time-colored words and beguiling ways that were his, he had won and married her.

It had taken him five days. The romance lived in Sitka's memory, not because of its swift culmination, but because of the previous love affair that had flamed for O'Moore before he ever laid eyes on Tanya Karmanova. It was when he was still master of the Glory of the West and making his first raids on Alaska seal herds that he had found frequent excuses for bringing his notorious vessel to anchor in Sitka Bay. He made no secret of the fact that the magnet which drew him was dashing, dark-eyed Jacqueline Reymann.

The headlong love affair that developed between the daughter of Captain Ramps Reymann, terror of seal poachers, and Danny O'Moore, king of pelagic sealers had set the whole coast talking.

Then, just as a wedding seemed imminent, something had happened. What it was no one had ever found out. But O'Moore ceased to visit Sitka. A year passed.

When O'Moore again dropped anchor at Sitka, he was master of a new fast schooner, the Triton. He tarried only long enough to win and marry blonde young Tanya, of Echo House. Immediately after the wedding, Miss Jacqueline set off alone on the first of those cruises which had so often since taken her around the world.

".....So with the Falcon on me tail, I lays me a course for a blind-mouthed harbor where no white man but meself would dare take anything bigger than a ship's gig."

The deep-rolling bells of St. Michael's, announcing the end of the Sunday Liturgy, blended suddenly with the disembodied voice. It was a brief duet which seemed to be expressing the very entitles of Echo House and the old log Cathedral, both bits of nineteenth-century Russia transplanted to the Western world when Alaska was the domain of a Tsar.

Echo Islet, no greater in area than a city block, was linked to one end of the waterfront by a short stone causeway. On its high flat top the old house squatted, massive and square and weather-silvered amid mountain-ash trees that had been shaped by wild sea winds. The windows commanded a four-way sweep—forested mountains, the little gray village, and the island-girted bay that led to the open Pacific.

The hewn-log house, with its fine old furnishings was a monument to those golden days when the town was this continent's most important port for trading vessels in the Pacific Ocean. Sonda O'Moore's great-grandfather had built it—the "Very Honorable" Michael Andreevich Karmanova, one-time Commander in the Imperial Navy of his Russian Majesty, Nicholas I.

".....Came a grindin' bump as the Glory's keel scraped barnacles off the reef. Climb that wheel, ye gumbooted, bean-bellied son of a sea bass."

The break in dictation made a sudden calm in the upstairs sitting room where Captain O'Moore sat beside a table on which stood a beautiful little model of the Glory of the West. Chair and table were placed in a spacious bay window facing west, so that a turn of the Captain's head to right and left brought under his eyes not only the waterfront, but the bay and the ocean beyond. The veteran shipmaster, medium-sized, sturdy, and immaculate in gray flannels, had a sound, clean look. Even with his leg in a cast resting on a hassock straight before him, he wore the air of one born to command. His clean-shaven face was lined but not wrinkled, under a swept-back thatch of silver hair. His fine nose had a quirk in it—memento of some youthful battle. His mouth was quizzically humorous. Only in his penetrating blue eyes lay a hint of the indomitable will and shrewdness which had made him a power in the shipping circles of the West.

"Son of a sea bass," prompted Sonda's low, vibrant voice. She glanced up from her typewriter. Her small head, held proudly, was covered with short silky curls that glistened golden-amber in the sun. Her eyes were the kind Russians call "mermaid eyes"—clear gray-green under dark lashes that turned up a little at the ends. "Go on, lamb."

The Captain, who had turned to look at something out of the window, suddenly reached back for his marine glasses and focused them on the waterfront.

Sonda rose and looked out.

There, on the wharf, a group of workmen stood listening to a tall woman whose high-headed air and commanding gestures brought a cry of surprise from Sonda.

"Surely that can't be—"

She caught up her own glasses and brought the woman's figure close. White hair, dark arrogant face, rich felt hat and tweeds in the latest mode. "But it is! Dynamite, it's old Miss Jacqueline Reymann. She must have come in by plane last night. What in the world do you suppose brought her home without a word of warning, after two years in Florida?"

The Captain snapped. "No concern of ours!" and shoved the binoculars back on the table. "Come, let's have a look at what you've been writin'. Step lively, confound it! Step lively!"

175 at Hanoverton O. E. S. Inspection

More than 175 guests, officers and members of the O. E. S. from Cleveland, Minerva, Alliance, Canton, Lisbon, Salem, Massillon, Negley, Sebring and Louisville attended the annual inspection ceremonies held by Pleasant Valley chapter of the Eastern Star at the hall in Hanoverton last night.

Mrs. Eva McCord of Lisbon, district deputy, conducted the inspection. Two candidates, Raymond and Miss Betty Votaw, were initiated. Ten matrons, and four patrons of the chapter, including the 1941 matron and patrons, and five past deputies were present.

Outstanding officers of the lodge at the inspection included: May Sharp, associate grand matron; Sophia Shaw, grand Electa; past grand matron, Alda Glazer; grand representatives, Estelle Higgins and Nellie Maeder.

The chapter room was decorated with flowers. A white cross banked with white snapdragons and lilies formed a setting for the rites. Vocal selections by Mrs. Mary Morgan of Minerva were heard during the work.

Gifts were presented by the chapter to Miss Helen Crist, worthy matron, and Mrs. McCord, district deputy. A gift from Mrs. Wayne Brown, associate matron who is visiting in New York, was presented to Mrs. Bruce Peiley who acted as associate matron last night. Miss Elizabeth Rush made the presentation.

Program Presented by Music Study Club

Musical entertainment in connection with the program study, "Opera and Music Drama," was enjoyed by the Salem Music Study club members at the home of Mrs. Nell Knowlton, S. Lincoln ave. Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Lea Cobbs reviewed the chapter from the study book on the program subject.

The musical numbers included: Piano solos, "Walker's Song" from "Die Meistersinger" (Wagner) Miss Martha Krauss; mandolin numbers, selections from "Pinafore" and "The Belman" (light operas by Gilbert and Sullivan) Mrs. John T. Burns, accompanied by Mrs. E. E. Dyal; piano solos, "Scherzo" (Mendelssohn) and "Shadow Dance" (MacDowell) Miss Marjorie Brian, a guest.

An interesting review of the opera, "Tristan and Isolde" (Wagner) which a number of the club members will hear performed today in Cleveland by the Metropolitan Opera stars, was given by Mrs. Dyal.

A social hour and refreshments followed the program. Mrs. Burns was associate hostess.

The group will meet again April 28 at the home of Mrs. Ellis Satterthwaite, E. Third st.

Expecting a Baby?

Mother's Friend helps bring ease and comfort to expectant mothers.

MOTHER'S FRIEND, an exclusively prepared emollient, is useful in all conditions where a bland, mild anodyne massage medium in skin lubrication is desired. One condition in which women for more than 70 years have used it is an application for massaging the body during pregnancy. It helps keep the skin soft and pliable... thus avoiding unnecessary discomfort due to dryness and tightness. It refreshes and tones the skin. An ideal massage application for the numb, tingling or burning sensations of the skin... for the tired back muscles or cramp-like pains in the legs. Quickly absorbed. Delightful to use.

Mother's Friend

Highly praised by users, many doctors and nurses. Just ask any druggist for Mother's Friend—the skin lubricant. Try it tonight.

Theatre Attractions

A mystery-comedy, "Footsteps in the Dark", stars Errol Flynn in the role of an investment firm head who finds his secret writing of mystery stories makes him a murder suspect. The comedy, which features Brenda Marshall, who also was with Flynn in the "Sea-Hawk", shows at the State tonight and Wednesday.

When the young executive is away from his office for long periods at a time, his wife and her mother become suspicious. His efforts, successful in spite of the police, to prove that a notorious character was murdered instead of dying a natural death lead the police to suspect him. A second murder puts him on the spot and to clear himself he undertakes to run down the real criminal.

At the Grand Wednesday only are: A mystery-adventure, "Meet Boston Blackie", featuring Chester Morris as the crackman-leuth character of Jack Boyle. Rochelle Hudson, Richard Lane and Constance Worth; and a comedy-romance, "Melody for Three", featuring Walter Woolf King, J. H. Scholt as Dr. Christian of Rure, End, and Fay Wray, with Touch Seidel, noted concert violinist and a screen discovery, the young violinist Schuyler Standish.

by German panzer columns, in the Mt. Olympus sector in eastern Greece.

Athens dispatches said that the Nazis were advancing into the Aegean kingdom on the left after occupying Phlorina, the northernmost hinge of the old Allied defense line, and that the Greeks were battling the Germans near Ptolemais.

The Greek high command acknowledged that the Germans were advancing in the center toward two towns 40 miles inside Greece—Kozani and Statista—south of the Albanian and Yugoslav frontiers and 30 miles south of Phlorina.

A Reuters (British news agency) dispatch said that the Germans were moving also toward Kilsura, Albanian town near Tepeleni, on the Greek western front.

The Greek high command said that Greek forces had withdrawn from the Corizza (Koriza) sector, in southeast Albania, and that "the enemy discovered the withdrawal 24 hours after it began and sought in vain to hinder it by pushing forward motorcyclists."

Premier Mussolini's high command asserted that the Italian 9th army, after taking Corizza, was driving on toward Greece through a gap torn in the western half of the Allied defense line.

Authorized quarters in Berlin declared the German high command, through Luftwaffe observations, had discovered undisputable proof that the British were preparing a hasty retreat from Greece.

"England's behavior is the most shameful crime ever perpetrated on an ally," the Nazis said.

The London radio, however, declared that "strong British reinforcements are now moving up to the front lines in Greece."

On the north African battlefield, thousands of British imperial troops released from the east African front were reported speeding to the defense of Egypt in a race with Axis mechanized columns driving into the ancient land of the Pharaohs toward the Suez canal.

The German-Italian counter-offensive raised the possibility that Egypt, Britain's non-belligerent ally, might soon be drawn into the war.

In a secret session, the Egyptian chamber of deputies ratified an agreement between the government and British authorities. The nature of the agreement was not disclosed.

The vanguard of the Axis expeditionary force in north Africa was reported pressing deeper into Egypt after capturing Salum, just inside the border from Libya.

Why does a Golf Ball bounce?

EVER notice that a golf ball, when you drop it, bounces higher than something hollow, like a tennis ball?

That's partly because of internal pressures, which also have so much to do with Buick's extra FIREBALL power.

Rubber threads inside a golf ball are packed tight, highly compressed. When flattened against a hard object, like a sidewalk, they come back harder, with more push, and so the ball bounces higher.

A similar thing happens inside a Buick FIREBALL straight-eight cylinder.

Fuel compression pressures are higher here than in any other standard-production automobile engine.

So when the spark jumps in the tightly-packed, fuel-fat ball of gas-mixture at the top of the stroke—the Buick piston goes rushing down with more push, more shove, more power than the same amount of fuel gives up elsewhere.

Result: every Buick engine travels farther per gallon this year than the same-size engines did last year, while Compound Carburetion† with Buick FIREBALL design gives as much as 10% to 15% more miles per gallon.

In fact, if you're buying any car this year, it's pretty important to see and drive a Buick before you're through; it's Number One in smart engineering as well as Number One in solid, rock-bottom, all-round VALUE!

Yankees Off In Front; Other Ball Clubs Take Up Chase Today

Bronx Bombers Get Jump On Field By Shellacking Senators, 3-0, At Capital

Both Leagues Open Fire Today; Indians Take On White Sox; Detroit Meets Browns; Reds-Cards' Tilt Tops Senior Loop

By JUDSON BAILEY

Sixteen major league baseball machines were lined up today for action before more than 200,000 fans—but, even on opening day, it was the old familiar story of chasing the New York Yankees.

The fearsome Bombers from the Bronx got a jump on the other teams yesterday by shellacking the Washington Senators, 3-0, before President Roosevelt and 32,000 other capital fans.

The way the Yankees took the lead in the American league before their rivals could get started was something like the way they used to scare their foes into submission by blasting countless "home runs" into the stands and over the fences in batting practice before their games began.

They didn't even give Washington a chance during the contest. The ceremonies of Vice President Wallace raising the American flag and President Roosevelt throwing out the first ball were hardly over before the Yanks had rolled out in front.

DiMaggio Triples

Red Rolfe, second man up, singled to right. He was forced by Tommy Henrich, but the latter went all the way to second on a wild throw and scored quickly on a towering triple by Joe DiMaggio.

The Senators, as well as the spectators, were practically stunned but the ease of the thrust, and Marius Russo, slender sophomore southpaw, never let them recover. He held the Nationals to three scattered singles and started two of the Yankees' three double plays. In addition, the Yanks punched out another run in the sixth on two singles and a long fly.

ST. PAUL, April 15.—The 2,013 all-events total scored by Harold Kelly of South Bend, Ind., on March 29 will be in jeopardy in the American Bowling Congress tourney today. Kelly averaged 223.6 for his nine games in the three events. John Marshall, Wooster, O., tossed in a 715 series in the five-man event last night and needs a 1,292 total in the doubles and singles to pass Kelly in the 9-game division. In averaging 238.1, Marshall had games of 232, 238 and 245 with the Collier printers, who hit only 2,702.

The Senators were up against marvelous pitching, but they didn't show any signs they would be a hitting team anytime this year. And the very fact that the opposition was so willed may keep other American league clubs from getting discouraged immediately.

However, the Yanks were due to open their home season today against the Philadelphia Athletics and, after two other games against the same foes at New York, return to Washington for a series with the Senators.

Thus, New York has an opportunity to build up momentum against the two teams that figure to be the league's weakest this season.

The Detroit Tigers, on the other hand, had to face the St. Louis Browns, "spoilers" of better times all last season, and the Cleveland Indians ran into the always-dangerous Chicago White Sox in their opener today. Friday, the Indians and the Tigers will tangle and Detroit.

Fortunately, championships are not decided in the first month, and before the end of next September all of the clubs will have faced the strong and the weak alike.

Reds, Cards Clash

This same reasoning may be some solace to the St. Louis Cardinals and the Cincinnati Reds, western division king pins of the National league, who clashed today at Cincinnati, while the Brooklyn Dodgers, their arch rivals in the east, took on the hustling New York Giants.

From a fans' viewpoint, however, the show at Cincinnati shaped up as the day's most interesting and important. Crosley field was sold out of reserved seats for the opener long ago as a result of the Cincinnati custom of giving the tickets as Christmas gifts.

The crowd would be 35,000, whether the attraction was good or not, but the world champions had to come up against one of the two National league teams considered capable of bumping them out of their third straight pennant. The three-game series opening today may give everybody a better slant on the Redbird threat.

Until proved otherwise, the Reds have to be regarded the likely winner next fall because they have unequalled pitching and defense and have bolstered their batting strength through the trade with Chicago for outfielder Jim Gleason.

Other clubs have improved, too, but it will take a lot of reconstruction to overcome the 12 game lead with which Cincinnati finished last year.

The other openers included Pittsburgh at Chicago and Boston at Philadelphia in the National, and Washington at Boston in the American.

Eagles Roll Into ABC Doubles Cash

Members of the Eagles' bowling team, back today from the A. B. C. at St. Paul, are confident that at least a couple members of the squad will get into the money when the dividends are passed around at the end of the firing.

Bill Shepard and Mike Hutter rolled up a 1221 in the doubles competition to set the pace for the local contingent, Hutter tossing a 253 in his third game for a 633 total.

Akron Marksman Wins
CLEVELAND, April 15.—A. W. Hunsicker of the Portage Rifle and Pistol club of Akron was the top marksman in the indoor tournament held here last week-end, aggregate results showed today.

In the grand aggregate, covering all individual events, Hunsicker posted a score of 2197 x 2300-162x. He placed fourth in the other two combinations, covering iron sight and any-sight events.

The complete aggregates included:

INDIANS ARE SET TO GO; SQUAD'S IN EXCELLENT SHAPE

Improved Team Morale Is Expected To Aid In Pennant Drive

CLEVELAND, April 15.—The rejuvenated and pennant-hungry Indians, sporting a great infield, a crack pitching a great infield, a spirit, clash with the Chicago White Sox today before a crowd expected to break all records for Cleveland baseball openers.

The weather man, uncooperative with an earlier forecast of "cooler and rain" helped stir Euclid avenue enthusiasm to mid-season pitch as he swung over to "continued warm and occasional showers."

C. C. Slapnicka, the club's conservative, bespectacled vice president, predicted attendance of 35,000 to 40,000. The present record of 31,606 was set in the 1938 inaugural.

Feller and Hemsley
Roger Peckinpaugh, back at the Cleveland helm after a seven-year exile, officially announced Bob Feller and Rollie Hemsley as his starting battery. Cigar-smoking Jimmy Dykes, who brought his Chicagoans into town this morning, nominated Bill Dietrich and Mike Tresh.

Feller pitched a no-hitter in the opener against Chicago last year, going on to win 27 and lose 11. Dietrich's record was 10 and 6. Peckinpaugh, as cagey as Oscar Vitt was voluble, gave his usual mild answers to prediction queries.

"We are starting the season with the idea of winning the pennant," the one-time shortstop said. "I can't make any predictions because there are seven other teams to consider. I am convinced we will be up there all the way."

Squad Is Ready
"The squad is in excellent shape and we are ready."

The experts who pick the Redbirds to win the flag stress the swinging in club morale with the coming of Peckinpaugh. They believe the flame of rebellion that scorched Vitt until the club fired him has been extinguished completely under the new manager's patient handling of the players.

Only one new player was listed in the Cleveland starting lineup: Gary Walker, a daring base runner and a timely hitter, has taken over the left field post held last season by blazin' Ben Chapman.

The biggest question mark as the Tribe drives for its first pennant in 21 years is the club's hitting. Most of the speculation centers around three players—Hal Trosky, Ken Keltner and Jeff Heath. If they regain their slugging peak, the Indians look good enough to win.

Fremont Signs Geygan

FREMONT, O., April 15.—James (Chap) Geygan, who piloted Fremont to its only pennant in 1939, is at the helm of the Ohio state baseball league team again. Geygan, who quit as manager of the Grand Rapids team of the Michigan state league two months ago, signed yesterday. He formerly managed Sandusky and Marion teams in the Ohio state league.

LOS ANGELES, April 15.—Dean Cromwell rolled out the old Trojan horse, unloosed a bunch of promising sophomores against a surprised California track team, and walked off with a 7-5 victory.

"A rather good performance," he admitted.

The Trojans walloped California's best team in eight years and gave Cromwell his 17th consecutive duel victory over the Bears.

BOWLING RESULTS

Charles Huffer of the Colonial Finance stole the show in the Quaker City league last night as he cracked out games of 235, 210 and 247 on the Grate alleys, for a top-notch 692 series, which is some fancy bowling in any league.

Two pocket splits in the ninth and tenth frames of his second game kept Huffer from turning in a 700 series.

Walt Hiltbrand also aided the Finance to chalk up a 932 total in its second game with a 231 score. These totals gave the Finance two out of three games over C. B. Hunt.

The first-place Altohouse Motors gained another game on the second-place Colonials when they trounced Coy Buicks three straight. The Motors hit 912 in their third game to finish up with a 2640 total.

The Golden Eagles were handed three games on a forfeit by the Masons while the Salem Motor took two from the Bachelors. Freed of the Golden Eagles' jacked-up a 216 in his second game.

The American league wound up its season last night at the Masonic alleys, with the exception of the two leaders, Fernengel and Fitzpatrick's Service.

The scheduled tilt between the two leaders was postponed last night. Fernengel's also have a postponed match to make up with the Electric Furnace, if necessary. As they stand now, Fernengel's are in first with 58 wins and 20 losses, and Fitzpatrick's in second with 59 wins and 22 setbacks.

The American Laundry finished up in third place as it was awarded three games on a forfeit by the Lease Drugs.

Demings whipped the Ohio Edison three straight to wind up in fourth.

The Masons lost three to the Electric Furnace but remain, at present, in fifth position.

Wernet's 211 in the second game helped the Furnace to turn in a 900 total. Heston had a 216 in the first.

Donbar paced the Laundry with a 200 total in his second try.

REDS, CARDS OUT TO CINCH PENNANT; HOT SERIES SEEN

Derringer and Warneke Will Take Mound In Opening Battle

(By Associated Press)

CINCINNATI, April 15.—Despite war, thunderstorm, and election, to steal the phrase of the late Senator Simeon D. Pess in avowing he'd get his sleep, there's a ball game here today, between the world champion Cincinnati Reds and the vitaminized St. Louis Cardinals.

The war is across a couple of oceans, thunderstorms (scattered) are in the weather bureau's tentative thought for the day, and the election will take 154 ballots—one for each game—to settle.

Seek Third Pennant
Just the same, as soon as Gov. John W. Bricker lobs out the ball at 2:30 this afternoon, the Reds start out for one of the National league's rarest prizes—a third straight pennant. Paul Derringer, senior member of one of the greatest two-man pitching acts in all time, and Lon Warneke, are the day's hurlers.

Each has the same record of three victories and two defeats against the other's team for 1940. Each is, as befits an opening day pitcher, a darned good artist with the ball, and it wouldn't surprise too many of the 35,000 cash customers if the game ended in a tie. That has happened more than once between these two teams and Derringer worked 10 innings in one of them.

Cards May Be Hot
Another factor which makes today's affair and the whole three-day series of interest is the possibility that the Cards, who were the hottest thing in baseball too late last season, may still be that way.

If they had played the first half of 1940 the way they did the second half, the Reds would not have won the pennant by 12 games. In fact, they would have been lucky to squeak through any farther ahead than in 1939, when they just barely outlasted the Cards.

Anyway, there is a fine, fat chance that the 1941 pennant winner is to be seen in action at Crosley field today, tomorrow, and next day. Larry MacPhail may perish the thought, but the burden of proof is on his Brooklyn Dodgers.
